

Hon. JOHN C. CARLISLE, representative from the 6th Kentucky District, has returned from New York, where he went by invitation to address the Democracy on the attitude of Congress. His speech met with great enthusiasm, and he is convinced that the "Northern Democracy are united in support of the position taken by the majority in Congress, and that a firm front on the part of the people's representatives will be sustained by the united Democratic party." Mr. Carlisle has accepted an invitation to speak on the same subject at Boston, and will appear there at an early day. There is no man in Congress who is probably better able to fulfill such a task than Mr. Carlisle. He is a fine scholar, a good speaker, and his words of truth and soberness carry conviction with them. He is rapidly taking his place as one of the leaders of our party, and with his clear head and strong arm at the helm we can not go far from the straight course.

The Senate has passed by a vote of 37 to 27, the Legislative, Executive and Judicial Appropriation Bill with all the political riders as passed by the House, and it was sent to the President yesterday. His veto is expected by Monday, but until then no action will be taken on the army bill. No definite course is yet marked out by the Democrats, but it seems to be the general belief that after the President has been tried in every way to give his sanction to the repeal of the test oath and the law allowing troops at the polls, without success, they will pass the appropriation bills and leave the issue to the people. The Republicans have put themselves on record in favor of every movement towards a despotism and opposed to every measure that will tend to heal up the wounds and differences of the war, and it but remains for the party to be blunted out by the overwhelming votes of a free people.

In an article on the situation, Hon. Henry Watterson publishes the following: "It is we, the Democrats, who have caught you, you the Republicans, in a trap. We have committed you to Grant, and Grantism, a year before your time. We have you committed to the rule of the bayonet. We have you committed to jury test-oaths—by which your own Judges and your own Prosecuting Attorneys can not sit upon the jury they instructed and plead. We drop you on there. We shall pass your beggarly appropriation bills. We shall take you on your own issue, and we shall see whether you can consolidate the North upon the ruins of the South, and, ultimately, the murder of the men, women and children of the South, upon a scheme to make our Government a military despotism. The issue will be Despotism or Democracy—which?"

The President of the United States of necessity owes his election to office to the suffrage and zealous labors of a political party, the members of which cherish with ardor and regard as of essential importance to the principles of their party organization. But he should strive to be always mindful of the fact that he serves his party best who serves the country best.—[Hayes in 1877.]

We learn with regret that Mr. Mal O'Doherty, Republican candidate for Register of the Land Office, has been compelled by business engagements to decline to make the race. This takes our Irishman from the State ticket, and we are disturbed lest our other friend of the "rich Irish brogue," Mr. O'Bready, will follow suit. But then he's too plucky a man for that.

It is said that Hendricks is doing a good deal of quiet work in the West and South just now for the Presidential nomination. He is not willing to accept the second place again on the ticket, and his agents are abroad to convince State Conventions that he is the man to lead the party to victory next year. Mr. Hendricks is a shrewd man in politics.

A CAREFUL perusal of Hon. Phil B. Thompson, Jr.'s speech before the House of Representatives when the appropriation bill was up, will convince the greatest of his enemies of his ability and tact. Everything considered, it is the best speech delivered this season. "Little Phil" has gone away up in everybody's estimation.

In an article favoring the reduction of the standing army to 10,000, the New York Sun says: "An army of 10,000 men will be plenty large enough to take care of the Texas frontier and look after the Indians. It will be too large, by 10,000 men, if it is to be used as a makeweight in party politics."

Vice-President Wheeler will not return to Washington during the present session. He suffers from extreme nervousness, which disturbs his sleep, and, moreover, prefers fighting for black men to being a figurehead for the National Debating Society. A much better man fills his place.

Some weeks since a drunken man jumped from the railing of the Cincinnati Suspension Bridge to the water below, a distance of ninety-two feet, and in a few days was as good as dead. A man named Price, tried it last Saturday, but he won't do so any more. His body had not been found at last accounts.

Mr. Gus C. Matthews, of the Courier-Journal, has been appointed by Colonel J. Stoddard Johnston, President of the Kentucky Press Association, to deliver the annual address at Bowling Green, and will comply. He is a very graceful and eloquent speaker, and will do honor to the association.—[Franklin Yeoman.]

The Virginia negroes held a Convention the other day and resolved that they organize in an emigration society for the purpose of leaving the State, as they can not get their rights in the midst of the uncompromising opposition of their race. They are mad because Judge Hughes failed to interfere in the emancipation case.

Cotton has advanced in Liverpool 11 pence since March 1st, and in New York. The advance is based upon a considerable deficiency in the visible supply. Owing to the buoyancy in cotton, and the rise in wool, a number of manufacturers of Kentucky jeans have advanced the price of their article 5 cents per yard.

Forty or fifty thousand pounds of wool were sold at the Sheep-rangers' Sale at Cincinnati on Wednesday, as follows: Dinkley & Son, of Louisville, bought the complete wool at 27 cents; John Bealby, of Lexington, bought the Delane wool at 26 cents; L. F. Junkin, D. D., of Charleston, S. C., formerly pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of this place, is expected in Danville during the week, and will probably appear before his old congregation next Sunday.

COUNTY COURT.—The live stock trade in Rouse County is about as active. Capt. English reports about 600 head of cattle on the market and the following sales made by him: Twelve head of good calves at $23.10 per head; 20 head at $22; 25 head of 50 head sold at $23.35; 25 head at $27.85; 16 head at $33.82 per head; 10 head at $18.50; 35 head at $21.80; 49 head at $21.40. WHERE ARE YOU, ANY WAY?—His Excellency, Governor McCreary, met with a rebuff in attempting to renew an old acquaintance at one of the receptions tendered the medical fraternity last week. Harrison Wickliffe, a colored man, for about a quarter of a century janitor of Centre College, and one who would not in the least be daunted by the presence of the most imperious potentate on earth, was requested to stand in the line in question at the residence of Dr. McKee.

A WOMAN'S KISS.—This address of Dr. Gross, of Philadelphia, upon the dedication of the McDowell Monument has been published, and we are reminded of a little incident connected with its delivery the Tuesday evening. At the conclusion of the exercises many of his appreciative auditors ascended the platform to speak to the eminent surgeon, who had paid such a noble tribute to the "backwoodsman," and among them a distinguished looking lady, grand-daughter of the pioneer surgeon, Dr. Gross was much moved by her kind congratulatory expressions and asked that she would kiss him, and the request was granted. It was a high honor bestowed upon the distinguished man, who had established for Dr. Ephraim McDowell his claim to the title, "Father of Ovarianity."

ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.
St. Vernon.
THANKS.—"If I know" will please accept our thanks for his excellent letter to the INTERIOR JOURNAL, written in our absence last week.

RAIN.—Several good showers of rain which fell in different parts of the county last week, greatly enlivened the hearts of the farmers who were complaining of the protracted drought.

CHANGE OF SCHEDULE.—By a recent change in the running of trains, the freight train going South, arrives at 8 o'clock, A. M., and returning North, arrives at 10 o'clock, P. M. This change is quite a convenient one.

WHITE.—WEST.—At the residence of J. T. Clark, in this place, on the evening of the 18th inst., Mr. Robert J. White was murdered by John L. Luter. These young people have loved each other long and well, but a cruel fate, a mere cruel parent, and the intermeddling of neighbors, have kept them apart. They have, though, at last, overcome all difficulties and are happy in the consciousness that "whom God hath joined together no man can put asunder." That their married life may be one of unalloyed happiness, we most sincerely wish.

FUR CHILD MURDER.—The case of the Commonwealth vs. Sallia Reardon, tried at the recent term of our Circuit Court, resulted in a verdict of guilty, and a sentence of imprisonment for five years in the Penitentiary. The defendant was indicted for the murder of her illegitimate offspring, and the Court gave an instruction to the jury on the crime of "attempting by drowning or secretly burying the same to conceal the fact of the child's being born alive," and under which instruction the verdict was found. Counsel for defendant then moved for her dismissal from custody, on the ground that the jury could not find her guilty of such an offense under an indictment for murder. The Court overruled the motion and the case will go to the Court of Appeals.

mid-tittle would be ashamed to own that he was the author of such a shallow article. The fact is, "U. Know" has been retreating in his own mind since John White, a lawyer from Clay county, walked into him on a ferry in a speech he made during the last term of our Circuit Court. He has been wanting to vent his spleen upon some body, and we suspect there was more malice than humor in his article of last week. He was afraid to tackle White, and jumps on us instead. But he can't provoke us into a declaration of war. Our experience with water-dogs last week, was quite sufficient for us. Let this whole matter now be consigned to a watery grave, and let there be no attempt made to fish it up.

PERSONAL.—Mr. Robert L. Brooks, a young gentleman of this place, left last week for Missouri, in which State he expects to make his future home. Mr. J. A. Polster, who left here for Illinois, where he expects to locate. Miss Maggie Smith, a very beautiful and agreeable young lady from Carroll county, is visiting Miss Mottel in Danville. Mr. Sam Hale, of Lexington, accompanied by her son, Willie Hale, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Terrell, near this place. Messrs. J. C. Herndon and Ed. Hogan, traveling agents for Bradley & Gilbert, and John P. Morton & Co., passed through here this week en route to the south. Dr. R. W. Brown and family, left here Wednesday morning, for Point Lick, Clark county, where they will make their home in future. Doctor Brown was reared in this county, and after active practice of his profession for fifteen years in his village, departs, taking with him the best wishes of our people. He and his most excellent wife have many warm friends here, who regret to see them leave us, but wish them prosper wherever they go. To the people of Point Lick, we recommend them as desirable citizens.

—Lieut. John Scott, of the U. S. Army, accompanied by his wife and child are visiting this place. Lieut. Scott was stationed here for several years just after the war, and has a host of friends here. The Division with which he is at present engaged, is the Montana Territory.

THE BATTERED MATTER.—It is not my desire to engage in a discussion with the editor of this paper. His course has generally met the approval of all law-abiding, fair minded citizens. The people of Rockcastle county admire him for his fearless and outspoken condemnation of lawlessness, and to that fact may be attributed in a great degree, the quite respectable circulation which the INTERIOR JOURNAL has attained in our county. Justice to the good name of our people, demands, however, that I should notice an editorial in the last week's issue. I allude to the article commenting on the result of the trial of George Saunders for the murder of the negro, Middleton, which trial was had at the recent term of our Circuit Court.

The writer of the article was evidently misinformed as to the facts in the case, and did not understand the "true inwardness of affairs" quite as well as he imagined. This must be true, for I would be slow to believe that the writer, or his informant could be prompted by any sinister motive to cast a reflection on the people of this county. Although many persons may have believed that George Saunders was guilty of the crime with which he was charged, still it is the policy of the law to presume the innocence of all offenders, and no right-minded citizen will find a man guilty of murder unless he has proven guilty, and by the testimony of reputable witnesses. In the case of George Saunders, the Commonwealth simply failed to establish his guilt, though thirty witnesses were sworn for the prosecution.

The assertion made by the writer of the article referred to, that the jury were organized to acquit, and that no foundation in fact, to any one acquainted with some of those composing the jury, the assertion that they would violate their oath, would have no other effect than to excite a ridicule for the man who made it. We sincerely trust that the vigilant Commonwealth's Attorney for the Eighth District will allow no more of Lincoln county's criminals to have changes of venue to this county. We do not want them here. But if they come here, and no better class of witnesses can be produced against them than in the Saunders case, rest assured that our jurors will turn them all loose. And it makes no difference whether the witnesses are white or black. A good negro will be believed here just as readily as a good white man. Perjured, no matter what their color, will obtain no credit.

MEDE, ON THE MOON, GIRLS CONSTANTLY.

A Scene of College Life.

"You'll be there, if thoughts of Indesone
Tried in temptation, straight bound by diurno,
Unnumbered by absence, time in every time,
And yet, Oh, more than all, untired by time."

'Twas midnight, in the month of July, 184-. All nature was hushed asleep; the harvest moon shone beautifully and bright through a cloudless sky, and saving the distant bark of a watch dog, the tramp of the watchman on his beat, and the roaring of the beautiful Holston, upon whose old bosom the moonbeams shone so lovely, silence seemed to have reigned over the city of the hills. At such an

Our young friends enjoyed themselves to their hearts content—and all were proud of their Senior class, and the attention paid them. They regarded the occasion not only a tribute of respect to the class, but an honor to the institution of which they were members—and whose honor and reputation were common property in which they had stock.

Twice on this occasion that Ethel and his admired Amede, met, and again passed away the pleasant and delightful hours, and such was the bearing and treatment of the one to the other, that the association made tenderer and stronger the tie that bound them together—and the confiding manner in which she leaned upon his arm, and the smile that played upon her cheek, and the sweet look of her bright, lily eye, enchained him to her worth and urged him to seek her hand and heart, young tho' they were.

Ethel escorted Amede from the party to her place of abode. The walk was pleasant, the promise to call was made and accepted, and when they separated for the night, it was the understanding that the time intervening between this and the closing exercises of their literary pursuits here, when convenient, might be passed together, and that they might enjoy each other's society and lend their mutual assistance to each other in their preparations for the final exercises. He assured her of his high regard for her personally, and his anxious wishes for her success in her classes and in the closing exercises which were to terminate her stay in the City Seminary. She thanked him for his kindness, and his good wishes for her own success.

But let us go back in our narrative to the year before, at which Amede and Ethel had met, and spent some pleasant walks together.

Late in the evening of a long Summer day, a young man rode up to the Inn at Montrose Springs and alighted. He was young and enthusiastic, and fond of romantic scenes. He was returning from a trip through the Northern part of Georgia, Alabama and the region of Tennessee, once the abode of the Indian and the theatre of many bloody conflicts between the red man and the whites for the possession of the rich country through which he had been traveling on business of a commercial nature for his father, who, years before, had traded in that country known as the Cherokee Nation. He took a seat, and after taking a wash, at the invitation of the polite landlord, and drinking of the pure water, he walked forth to inspect the romantic and shady retreat.

On his pathway, he met a party of those sojourning at the Springs—and among them he recognized Amede—who he had oftentimes met in the city, who like himself had been engaged in study, and had come with a party of her friends to spend the vacation in this pleasant place, drinking the pure waters found in such abundance, and breathe the pure mountain air to her, so necessary to enable her to pursue her studies on her return to school. They had often met at Church, in the lecture room, going to and from their school, and they knew each other by sight. No formal introduction had ever taken place. When they met, he politely bowed, and she pleasantly recognized the same, and he approached her and tendered his services in the prosecution of their walk. To two young persons far away from their associates, thus thrown together, was to them a pleasant surprise, and they continued their walk with glad hearts and talk mutually interesting. Before separating, he informed her that his business would compel him to continue his journey on the following day, and requested that he might have her company on the next morning in visiting the Springs and looking over the grounds and places of interest and attraction. This was accepted, and they separated for the night.

Upon the next morning he called, and they some hours in looking over the grounds and parkings of the waters, admiring the beauties of the scenery and the surrounding mountains. This was a pleasant meeting, and well did it pay, and for the stay at a place he had long been anxious to see, and with such company the hours were delightfully passed, and he placed him in a mood better to pursue his journey, since he had met and renewed the acquaintance of one of the most beautiful and pure of her sex, whose company, when they again returned to their studies, he should seek, and in which he anticipated so much ease.

Scene at a wedding breakfast—Company all seated about the table. A pause in the general conversation. A happy husband to his wife's little sister at the other end of the room: "Well, Julie, you are to have a new mother now." Julie—"Yes; but may I said to papa the other day that I was afraid you would never amount to much—but it seemed to be Sarah's lot chance!"

Three hundred tramps were vaccinated in New York the other night. The way to vaccinate a tramp is with a hot gun. This prevents him from taking the small-pox and a farmer's chickens.—Norristown Herald.

Singular Tragedy.
A singular and deplorable event has just taken place, which shows once more what one may expect from the intelligence of singular animals.

Every body knows the pond in the Garden of Acclimation in Paris, where the seals frolic, and the little rock, from the top of which the keeper Alexander comes at meal time to give the animals their food.

The seals, which the sight of Alexander made happy, climb some times the rock, and were in the habit of coming to get their food out of the keeper's hand. Day before yesterday at 3 o'clock; whilst Alexander was feeding these amphibians, a wedding party arrived. Alexander wished to be gallant toward the bride and made the two seals climb the rock. There he took a live fish, and held it in such a way that the seals, in order to catch it were obliged to stand up a make a jump for it. The sight made all the visitors burst into a hearty laugh, and the whole wedding party was delighted. All of a sudden, one of the animals, tired no doubt, stood up, and then fell heavily on the keeper. The latter, tripped, lost his balance and fell so unluckily that he split his skull on the edge of the rock and disappeared under water. Then, nothing was more curious than to see the bewilderment and misadventure of the seals. These animals began to dive several times, and together they put the body of Alexander on their backs, brought him to the surface and pushed him on shore, making plaintive cries as if calling for help. Unfortunately, help was not needed. The poor keeper of seals was killed on the spot.—[Paris Figaro.]

A Wrecked Ship.
The Vimla Delta is responsible for this story. A report comes from the Sierra Nevada Mountains of the discovery of the timbers of a stranded vessel, resembling those of a Chinese junk, high up in the mountains, between Mineral King and the head waters of King's River. The round portion of the timber resembles camphor wood, and it is said, still retains a faint smell. The fastenings are of copper; the rigging, &c., of course, are all gone. A number of bones, supposed to be human, were also found in the vicinity and upon the adjacent slopes there is abundant evidence of the previous occupation of the water, in shape of abells, as well as the occasional findings of petrified fish. That this valley has at one time been an inland sea is admitted by geologists, but that these waters were navigated by Celestial seamen one or two thousand years ago, has never been claimed even by the Chinese themselves. But these same people do claim to have been the original discoverers of the country, and this find seems to give color to their claim. It has also been claimed by them that vessels of theirs have been wrecked on this coast, and that portions of the crew have returned to China; but that the wreck itself should be located, and this location should prove to be in Tulare county, is surely an interesting fact, inviting the inspection of the curious and the solution of the scientific.

Singular Marriage.
The Danbury News says: In Iowa, a few days ago a rather singular marriage took place. The groom was an Englishman who could not understand a word of German. The courtship of these antipodal people was fully as remarkable as their union. It was carried on by a mutual friend, a young German who was versed in the mysteries of English, and who interpreted the gutturals of the two dialects into the beautiful language of love. It was necessarily a brief courtship. The difficulty of rendering the thoughts of each unto the other would tend to shorten the matter, and then the wear and tear on the interpreter would preclude a very long siege. To repeat to her the words of devotion from the lover were easy enough, and her tenderness in return, were not impossible tasks, but the climaxes took his strength. To earn the consent for a kiss, embrace or caress by the tenderest eloquence, and then to step aside and let another man take it—to have his nerves excited to the highest degree of pleasurable anticipation, and then to be obliged to sit suddenly down upon them while another man sailed in and plucked the joy, could not fail to exhaust the stoutest nature in a very short time.

An interesting article in Switzerland's Monthly, gives a comparison of the cost of narrow gauge railways with those of wide gauge, and a statement of the advantages of the former system. The saving in expense is figured out as nearly one-half, while the carrying power is placed at the astonishing figure of 94 to 1,040 tons; that a train of 354 tons is made up of 190 tons of freight and 64 tons of dead weight by a narrow gauge road, while the wide gauge requires 1,040 tons of carriages (dead weight) to carry the 260 tons of freight.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
 is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, sillings, mandrake, yellow dock, with the solids of potash and iron, all powerful blood-making, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and in every way the most efficient alterative medicine known or available to the public. The sciences of medicine and chemistry have never produced so valuable a remedy, nor one so potent to cure all diseases resulting from impure blood. It cures Scrofula, and all scrofulous diseases, Erysipelas, Rose-ur St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-breaks, Psoriasis, Itchings, Boils, Tumors, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum,
 Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Diseases, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruptions which contaminate the blood, and cause disorder and decay. It stimulates and enlivens the vital functions. It promotes energy and strength. It restores and preserves health.
 It infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair, who will give AYER'S SARSAPARILLA a fair trial. Remember, the earlier the trial, the speedier the cure.

Its recipe has been furnished to physicians everywhere; and they, recognizing its superior qualities, administer it in their practice.

For nearly forty years AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has been widely used, and it now possesses the confidence of millions of people who have experienced benefits from its marvellous curative virtues.
